

David Livingstone Safari Resort (formerly Voyager Safari Lodge) is situated to the northeast of the Masai Mara National Reserve in the Koiyaki Lemek Conservancy on a broad bend with hippo pools on the Mara River. The lodge is set in 40 acres of tropical gardens with indigenous plants and botanical gardens.

Resting along the meandering Mara River, The David Livingstone Safari Resort is an oasis of peace and tranquility in the world's greatest wildlife spectacle, the Masai Mara Game Reserve.

David Livingstone Safari Resort is an interface between you and the primal spirit of adventure in the Great African wilderness. Located on concessional land on 4 shimmering hippo pools, with a resident population of over 200 hippopotami and several crocodiles, the resort is an ideal base to experience the Masai Mara.

Guests can see hippos across the river from their table as they sit down for the meals prepared by our international chefs.

The View Point Bar and rest area offers a spectacular view of the Mara river and the animals.

David Livingstone Safari Resort has played host to countless distinguished guests including the past president DANIEL ARAP MOI, MWAI KIBAKI and renowned film actors and world famous photographers from across the globe. our resort has remained a favourite spot to many wildlife researchers from every corner of the world.

Surrounding the lodge is one of the seventh wonders of the world: the worlds biggest land migration passes the very great wildebeest & zebra in search of grazing across the plain and rivers under the eyes of various lions and crocodiles.
