Blending into the surroundings, it comprises seven uniquely different cottages within the main Olarro property plus Little Olarro, an exclusive, private house suite set slightly apart in the hillside.

Olarro Camp is the delightful jewel in the crown of the Loita hills luxuriously lying snug in the contours of an ancient hillside immersed in private seclusion. Located in South Western Kenya in the Loita Hills Massif. Olarro, Maa (language of the Maasai) for 'the Buffalo', is 6000 feet above sea level, nestled in the Enkijape hills about 200 kms from Nairobi. It is situated on a 10,000 acre private Conservancy on the 150,000 acre Maji Moto Group Ranch, owned by the local Maasai people. The Conservancy sits along the corridor of the annual wildebeest migration and plays a significant role in the Greater Nguruman, Loita, Mara, and Serengeti ecosystems.

Olarro Camp Accommodation:

Olarro lodge faces westwards looking out over the rolling hills of the Mara ecosystem. Main Olarro, situated on the north side of the property, has seven cottages (3 twin rooms and 4 double rooms). Six of the cottages are co-joined through a common sitting area, ideal for groups of friends or families. Visitors to Main Olarro cottages dine in the Northern Lounge which overlooks the savannah.

For those guests seeking total privacy and exclusivity, Little Olarro presently comprises of a private house located a short distance from the main lodge. It has a luxury suite with a master bedroom, a smaller twin bedroom, lounge, dining area and veranda, all offering stunning views of the Loita plains. Little Olarro has its own entrance, private kitchen and deck area.
