

Rutundu Log Cabins are situated on the slopes of Mount Kenya at 10,200 feet or 3000 meters above sea level, just above the forest line. Total privacy is guaranteed, the cabins are positioned overlooking Lake Rutundu and surrounded by alpine moorland, a home for unique bird life and vegetation. Rutundu is open throughout the year.

Getting to Rutundu log Cabins By Road

Rutundu Log Cabins can be reached by turning off the main Nanyuki – Isiolo road up to the log cabins, a four-wheel drive vehicle is needed, and the drive should take about 1.5 hours. The road deteriorates somewhat from the hollow trees onwards; the trees are a good half way mark in terms of time. The road ends at the Kizita gorge, where you leave your vehicle.

From here to the cabins is a 15-minute, challenging walk through the gorge. The staff will meet you where the road ends and will carry your luggage to the cabins.

Getting to Rutundu Log Cabins By Air

Rutundu Log Cabins by air can be reached through an airstrip about 1.5kms from the cabins and a heli pad about 100 meters from the cabins.

Getting to Rutundu Log Cabins By Horse

There is now an option of riding to Rutundu Log Cabins. Neighboring Kisima Farm provides trained polo horses to ride through the moorland and up to Rutundu. Overnight stays are a must in this case. Please be warned that the horses are well trained polo horses and you need to be an experienced rider.
