

Kulalu Camp Tsavo East Kenya is located just 110 kilometres west of the coastal towns of Malindi and Watamu, only two hours drive away, in the Galana and Kulalu Ranches deep in the heart of Kenya's bush land on 1.4 million acres of pristine Africa. The Galana Conservancy was formed in May 2009 and totals some 65,000 acres of semi arid ground bordering Tsavo East National Park. The wildlife conservancy is in its very early stages but provides a unique opportunity to reverse the decline in animal numbers in this area and over time allow species to recover.

Accommodation & Room Types

The camp consists of 5 spacious tents, two doubles (one which can also be used as a family tent with a bunk bed) and three twins each with en-suite, flushing toilet and a safari shower. Each tent is thoughtfully positioned to ensure a breathtaking view of the Galana River. The Camp is environmentally friendly, being powered by solar panels.

Dining & Staff

The dining and lounge area is a semi permanent makuti (palm thatch) building. This provides a safe and comfortable place to quietly watch the game and bird activity along the river bank or to spend the hot afternoons with a cool drink and a book. The river location provides brilliant opportunities to be sitting relaxing on your veranda while watching the wildlife come and drink from the river in the morning and late afternoon. www.crocodileracers.com

Food at Kulalu is absolutely delicious and the chef transforms the mess into a haven of culinary delight. The chef provides country house cooking using fresh produce that is bought in from Malindi. The kitchen is a traditionally styled mobile camp kitchen and food is prepared using a safari oven, a large metal box covered in a large pile of glowing embers. Feast on full English breakfast's, light lunches and three course dinners as you look out over the Galana River.
